

If there is no safety issue, I strongly urge the FCC to allow cellular phone use in aircraft. The FCC should not take into consideration whether people want someone next to them on a plane making a call as this can easily and much more properly be handled by the choices of the airlines and individuals.